

Cosmic White™

Raphiolepis indica 'RAPH01' (P)

- Medium form Raphiolepis with big white flowers more often
- Super tough
- Has rarely ever produced seed

Cosmic White is just about bullet proof, it is a large evergreen shrub which will grow pretty well anywhere and tolerates most soil conditions. It grows to around 1.5-2 metres tall. It is ideal for roadside plantings, where it can live on natural rainfall once established or simply great in a garden. Cosmic White produces masses of larger white flowers compared to common Raphiolepis. It flowers heavily in spring, with spot flowering the rest of the year, it is not unusual to see some flowers on Cosmic White all year round when other forms have finished flowering. Cosmic White has only produced seed on a couple of rare occasions, which makes it a safer choice when planting near to native bushland. Cosmic White also has very good disease resistance, producing very clean foliage. Cosmic White is great for those difficult planting positions where nothing else seems to thrive.

Cosmic White has a larger flower than the original Raphiolepis
